The new Family Seaview
suite, spread over two floors and with a private balcony

The discreet beau monde has been making a summer migration to Mykonos for years. Once the island playground of Jackie and Aristotle Onassis, its word-of-mouth reputation as a place to frolic unobserved has lured the smart set ever since. At Santa Marina Resorts & Villas, with its own peninsula and rare-as-rain private beach, there's always a sunbed to be found. It's no wonder the hotel draws year-after-year visitors such as the Ronson music dynasty (producer Mark, DJ Sam and their elegant mother, Ann Dexter-Jones). Santa Marina also acts as a lunchtime magnet for the likes of Hollywood titan Harvey Weinstein, who drops in for lunch en famille and stays all afternoon. Valentino stops by on his yacht, as does jeweler Diane Kordas. The only essentials to pack are a new bikini – think Kenzo graphics rather than fluoro – a kaftan by Lisa Marie Fernandez and some monochrome flats. Insouciance is all. From your perch on a stool at the sushi bar, all you then need to do is gaze at the iridescent Aegean Sea and enjoy the atmosphere, which is secluded and rarefied in all the right ways. Leisurely lunches can stretch into late afternoon, as little ones retreat to the kids' club, energetic types dive or play tennis, and teenagers speed off by boat to party, leaving grown-ups to snooze in the shade. Come evening, guests migrate from the restaurant to dance in the bar. Some go to Mykonos Town by speedboat, but no one stays away for long. santa-marina.gr
